On legislation, she dictated this to me and said it's what she'd like to say

The reality is, we do not have the tools today. We intend urgently to table, with all due care, legislation giving us those tools broadly, we intend to act in two areas:

One is to extend FINTRAC reporting obligations to crowdfunding platforms.

And the second is to give the federal government the authorities in extreme situations, which we will detail along with proper safeguards, to freeze the bank accounts of people or businesses taking part in illegal activity which poses a significant threat to the country.

I still think it is leaning too far.

Hmmm

But she's accepted your point to say we aren't detailing everything today — we will go away and come
